Co:Writer removes spelling and grammar barriers so students feel confident to express not just what they can spell, but what they really want to say. The new Co:Writer Universal removes all boundaries to this expression. Whether on iPad, Chromebook, or desktop, students access their favorite writing tool. They can pick their writing up instantly, from anywhere, on all of these platforms.

Integration Between Platforms

For students to improve their writing, they need to write a lot—not just at school, but at home too. In the past, transferring files between school and home and across computers was challenging at best, and sometimes impossible. Co:Writer Universal eliminates this obstacle entirely. Students simply write in the Co:Writer interface, and they can pick the writing back up anywhere, even on another device. Student settings and Topic Dictionaries are also shared between platforms and across devices!

Data-Driven Decision-making

How much are your AT tools being used? Co:Writer Universal answers that question. Built-in data collection constantly monitors student writing. You can now graph usage data and vocabulary of individual students and groups. You'll know exactly which students (and teachers) are using the tools, and which may need some help or encouragement.

Co:Writer Universal Includes:

iPad

In less than a year, Co:Writer for iOS has already made the list of top 100 most popular education apps. It includes many of the key supports you've relied on to help your most struggling writers over the years, like FlexSpell and Topic Dictionaries. And now what is written with Co:Writer on your iPads integrates with the Chrome app on Chromebooks and desktop.

Chromebook

Many districts are going one-to-one Chromebooks and are moving from Microsoft Office to Google Drive. We believe that moving from one platform to another shouldn't be a barrier, so we developed Co:Writer for your Chromebooks and computers running Chrome. It seamlessly integrates into the Chrome browser and works wherever students need writing assistance.

Desktop

Over 5,000 districts rely on Co:Writer word prediction for their most struggling writers. In the Mac and Windows-compatible desktop version, Co:Writer Universal builds on its 20-year heritage, and now integrates with Chrome and iPad versions. In addition, Co:Writer Universal features testing accommodation supports and new data reporting to better inform instruction and accommodation usage.
