South Putnam Junior/ Senior High School
Message to the Reader / Teacher

We are a group of teachers from a small, rural junior/senior high school using the UDL – Universal Design for Learning – theory to promote technology in the classroom. Our diverse background includes two Special Education teachers with math backgrounds, a math teacher, a social studies teacher, an English teacher, a Media Specialist, an IT specialist, and an Engineering/Print Management teacher. Our principal is a consultant for our team.

Our intent with this unit is to have freshman students read, view and interact with The Odyssey through a variety of tools and activities. They will conclude the unit with a test and a tic-tac-toe project that covers all learning styles.

This unit is designed for a 9th grade English class. It will take approximately four weeks to complete. Three weeks will be spent studying the epic poem and the final week will be used to finish up and present unit-ending projects. In addition to reading the poem aloud in class and discussing the setting, characters, literary elements, poetic elements, and themes, etc., students will view a number of Promethean flipcharts with embedded notes, images, and web links. The teacher will also use the Promethean board to annotate over the poem text as students read. Additionally, extra readings, discussion forums, and activities will be posted on the Moodle. students will respond to discussion questions and each others' comments. They will also complete self-paced internet activities, complete vocabulary exercises, and work in teams to research and present information on different gods and goddesses. They will take a comprehensive exam over the play and create individual projects. Students have access to individual computers in the classroom with internet access and access to the Moodle, audio versions of the epic poem, a text version of the poem in their literature books, Flip video cameras and a Promethean board.

Assessment

The students will be assessed in a variety of ways starting with a pre test to determine what the students know about literary and poetic elements, Homer, epic poetry, gods and goddesses and the Trojan War. Then they will be introduced to Homer, the gods and goddesses, the Trojan War, epic poetry and an epic hero through viewing a flip chart, taking part in class discussions, and taking a virtual tour of Greece and the gods. Students will also complete activities and take part in forum discussions through the Moodle. During one class period, student will divide into groups and select one of the Greek gods or goddesses. They will then research the topic on their desk top computers and make a brief presentation to the class the next day. All students will complete an online quiz over the gods and goddesses. The instructor will preface the epic poem by reviewing elements of literature and epic poetry. The presentation will be made with assistance of a flip chart and online resources. The excerpts of The Odyssey will be read aloud in class. The teacher will annotate over an online version of the poem on the Promethean board as the class reads and discusses the poem. The teacher will also access online resources with additional information to augment their understanding of particular events in the poem, such as the scene with the Sirens and the cyclops. Students will write in comments through the Moodle into class forums to discuss characteristics of the characters, plot, theme and poetic style. They will also complete vocabulary exercises and take periodic quizzes to update the instructor on their understanding as they advance through the epic play. At the conclusion of reading the poem, students will watch a movie version of the epic poem starring Armand Assante to aid their understanding and fill gaps left by only reading excerpts. http://www.amazon.com/Odyssey-VHS-Armand-Assante/dp/1574924494/ref=sr_1_1?ie=UTF8&s=dvd&qid=1276532754&sr=8-1

All students will write a short literary response to some aspect of the poem (themes, use of imagery, irony, direct and indirect characterization, etc). Students will write a rough draft, take part in self-evaluation and proofreading and peer editing. Then students will complete a final draft. This writing will take place in the first two weeks. All writing will be completed on the students' computers.

During the last week of the unit, students will complete projects. Students will be given a tic-tac-toe chart with a variety of options that represent all learning styles. In addition to turning in and presenting unit-ending projects, students will also take a comprehensive exam at the conclusion of the poem. In order to review for the exam, students will complete quizzes at http://www.projectx2002.org/nederlands_hotpots/quiz_odyssey.htm and http://www.funtrivia.com/playquiz/quiz132517f2da60.html The entire class will also participate in a Jeopardy game
